

'ANOTHER ONE BITES THE DUST' — The Eastside Service Center operated by CMAAO at 881 Mt. Vernon Ave. and the agency's County Service Center in Urbancrest will close Dec. 31. The 11 employees staffing the two centers and 19 other CMAAO workers will lose their jobs. CMAAO officials said the cutbacks were necessitated by a 35 percent reduction in federal funds to the agency.

30 Staffers Fired

CMAAO Budget Slashed, Two Centers Will Close

By C.A. BRYCE JR.

Because of a 35 percent cut in its federal funding, The Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization (CMAAO) has announced the termination of 30 employees and the closing of two of its five neighborhood action centers. Both actions are effective Dec. 31.

The second highest ranking official of CMAAO told The CALL & POST Monday that further cuts are expected in the near future.

"This is a classic example of Reaganomics in action," Bill Conley, CMAAO deputy director, said. "We're taking it on the chin just like all human services agencies and programs."

ley said he expected the agency to survive the next four years on a more limited basis.

The federal legislation authorizing CMAAO's continuing existence remains in effect for the next four years, Conley explained. He predicted, however, that the Reagan administration "will continue to chip away at us, forcing us to cut back services and making it more difficult for us to perform effectively."

Conley said that CMAAO officials learned Nov. 2 that they would be receiving $400,000 less for 1982 than they had expected. Agency officials had anticipated receiving $1.2 million in federal funds to continue operating at its current level.

KBLE, City Square Off As Dispute Heats Up

By C.A. BRYCE JR.

Hopes for an amicable, out-of-court settlement of the dispute between the city's Department of Energy and Telecommunications and KBLE Ohio Inc. seemed to be growing dimmer this week as both sides indicated they have gone as far as they can in their efforts to resolve the conflict.

The department, which regulates the city's cable television systems and administers the law governing their performance, alleges that KBLE, Columbus's only locally-owned cable system, is in violation of the city code for failure to meet deadlines for providing service to certain areas within its franchise district.

Saying that her office has done "all that we can do" to persuade KBLE to meet its construction deadlines, Anne Meier, director of Energy and Telecommunications, told The CALL & POST Tuesday that she was referring the case to the city attorney for consideration of possible legal action against the cable firm.

Saying that he has gone "as far as I can go" in his efforts to comply with the regulators' demands, William T. Johnson, president of KBLE, said in a separate interview that his firm is ready to go to court if necessary to gain more time to completely wire the disputed areas.

Johnson cited problems of "logistics and economics" as reasons for his firm's inability to meet projected construction timetables. He charged that Meier's office has taken a "hard line" approach to KBLE's extension requests but has treated other cable systems more leniently in similar circumstances.

The areas at the heart of the dispute comprise about nine or 10 square miles of the approximately 70 square miles in KBLE's franchise district.

When interviewed late last week, Johnson said his firm has "every intention" of providing service to the neighborhoods in question. "We said we would serve those areas, we want to serve those areas, we have every intention of serving those areas as soon as logistical circumstances and economic conditions permit construction to be completed without seriously damaging the financial health of this business," he stated.

The neighborhoods yet to be provided with service include parts of the Near Northside, Linden and Windsor Terrace, and the area known as Kensington in the northeast part of the city, as well as the American Addition.

Johnson said his surveys show about 800 occupied dwellings in the total area lacking service. In contrast, KBLE presently provides access to some 28,200 homes, he asserted.

Johnson acknowledged that his firm has sought and received extensions of construction deadlines in the past, as have the city's (Continued on Page 4B)

KROGER CONTRIBUTES — The Kroger Co., in response to a plea from Operation Feed, the county's food pantries network, has announced that it will make 10 large weekly donations of foodstuffs from their own inventory and has established collection boxes for donations from patrons of their Central Ohio stores. Shown above a collection box in the E. Main St. "superstore" are co-manager Bob McClung and Doris Stewart, a shopper. The food pantries, which provide emergency assistance to poor families, have launched a massive drive for donations to compensate for increasing demand which has seriously depleted supplies. (AMOS H. Businesses Respond To Pleas For Food By The Area's Poor

In response to the increasing need for providing food to the hungry and destitute, some area businesses are offering their enthusiastic support to Franklin County food drivers.

An important step in this direction was taken by the Kroger Company when it announced at a recent press conference in a large Columbus food drive program. Kroger's released figures showing its initial contribution to Operation Feed's Foodbank amounted to nearly 900 gallons of milk and 500 loaves of bread.

The first week's delivery was brought to the foodbank via tractor-trailer. The company will make nine more weekly donations.

Operation Feed is a community network of more than 60 emergency food pantries serving the hungry of Columbus and Franklin County. Kroger's stores and BancOhio were among the first company's to respond to Bishop Edward Herrmann plea to help feed the poor. The Columbus Catholic Diocese leader has called for all concerned companies to help keep area food pantries stocked.

Both BancOhio and Krogers have set up bins in the county locations for donations by customers.

In announcing its participation, BancOhio National Bank hosted a news conference in its downtown plaza. At the conference, a drive to collect needed canned foods for area food pantries and food lines was explained by Operation Feed Drive Chairman Melvin L. Schottenstein, a local attorney.

Prior to the conference, BancOhio associates and other tenants of BancOhio National Plaza started their collection efforts by donating canned goods displayed at the news conference.

Charles R. Hoskins, BancOhio's senior vice president for community banking, said, "We are

'SLOW' POLICE RESPONSE QUERIED

11-Year-Old Boy Killed By 'Drunken' Motorist On Rampage In Linden: Others Hospitalized

The parents of a 11-year-old boy killed by a car driven by an allegedly drunken driver said Tuesday they plan to file a complaint with the Columbus police department regarding the length of time it took for a police cruiser to arrive at the scene of the accident.

Steven Brown, son of Mr. and Steven Brown of 2604 Pontiac Ave., died Monday in Children's Hospital of injuries suffered when he was struck by a car Dec. 3 while crossing a field in front of Hamilton Ave. Elementary School.

Two other children—Marvin Horton, 11, of 1235 Briarwood Ave., and Rodney Applewhite, 12, of 1258 Republic Ave. — were also injured in the mishap. Both were listed in fair condition at Children's Hospital late Tuesday.

The driver of the car, Ellsworth E. Long 58, of 1292 E. 24th Ave., has been charged with driving while under the influence of drugs and alcohol, inadequate brakes, driving without an operator's license and failure to control his vehicle.

Long's case was to be turned over to the Franklin County Grand Jury to consider an indictment on a charge of aggravated vehicular homicide, police said.

Witnesses reported that Long's car ran a stop sign and jumped the sidewalk on Hamilton Ave. before striking the trio of youngsters, police reported.

The dead boy and his two companions were walking home from classes at Linmoor Middle School at the time of the accident.

Emmet Brown, Steven Brown's paternal grandfather, told The Call & Post that he arrived at the scene of the accident shortly after it occurred. He said that a police cruiser did not arrive until after fire department emergency units had departed.

Thomas Fletcher, principal of Linmoor Middle School, said he too was disturbed at the length of time it took for police to arrive.

"Several calls were placed to police," Fletcher said. "The accident happened at about 3:05 p.m., and they arrived at 3:55 p.m."

The dead youth's parents said they too were con-

Community Appalled By Shotgun Slaying

By RICHARD PAYNE

Police remain hopeful that the large number of responses they have received on an Eastside man's murder will lead to the apprehension of his assailant.

A single shotgun blast struck Clarence "Boscoe" Walker Jr. in the back as he attempted to escape death inside his home at 1361 E. Livingston Ave. Nov. 29. The 23-year-old man died at the scene at 5:20 a.m., police said.

"We don't have any suspects yet, but we're producing a lot of information," said Detective Sgt. John Shawkey of the Homicide Squad.

Walker's relatives and friends alike have expressed how appalled they are by his murder. Close relatives told The CALL & POST that the turn out for the young man's funeral last Friday overwhelmed them.

Hundreds of mourners attended the services at Second Shiloh Baptist Church. The Rev. Walter J. Flemmings officiating.

Walker's death occurred while he was entertaining guests, two friends, during the early morning hours that Sunday. He stepped to his front door to investigate some noises outside his home and apparently confronted someone, police said.

As he turned to get back inside, he was cut down by a blast through his front door. The shotgun's discharge ripped through his back and left side, according to an unofficial autopsy report given by the Franklin County Coroner's office.

"There has to be some involvement other than a personal thing," Shawkey said in response to rumors that Walker was killed due to revenge. "We can't say what the motive was."

Shawkey said the numerous calls police were getting might lead to an arrest soon. He said that none of the rumors had been verified as of yet. Police are speculating that Walker's death was planned more than just for revenge, he said.

"I hope and pray every day that they catch them," said Mrs. Anita Walker, of 1567 Venice Dr., the victim's mother. "They just took my son away."

Refugee Problem Is Topic Of Meeting Monday

Columbus community leaders, churches and concerned citizens are being called upon to protest treatment by the Reagan Administration of 3,000 Haitian refugees being held in detention camps throughout the United States — because the government contends they have no legal right to be here.

Coming to Columbus to present first hand evidence regarding the plight of the Haitians is Marie-Maude Valbrun, from the Cuban-Haitian Ministries of Miami, Florida.

Ms. Valbrun will be speaking at a public meeting Monday, December 14, 1981, at St. Phillips Lutheran Church, 1506 E. Long St. at 7:30 p.m. and explain how Columbus can assist Haitian refugees.

The Reagan Administration has taken the position that the Haitians are economic not political refugees, therefore they can be returned to their country of origin and they are not eligible for asylum," Valbrun said.

According to Valbrun, for the last few years, 50,000 Haitians have sold all their possessions to risk a 800 mile boat trip to the United States which has always been known for helping the poor and distressed.

Those who will be gathering in Columbus to help deal with the Haitian situation through a special task force are: Jim Smith, Immigration and Refugee Service; Clifford Tyree, Second Baptist Church; the Rev. Jesse Wood C. Norman Collins, President, NAACP; Charlene Morgan, PIE; Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization (CMAAO).

Valbrun is scheduled to appear on WCMH-TV's "On The Real Side" hosted by Nana Watson, communication director of CMAAO. The show will air Sunday, Dec. 20, at 11:30 a.m. and Tuesday, Dec. 22, at 6:30 a.m.

Ma Bell's Plea For More Cash Draws Skeptics

Ohio Bell Telephone Company's recent claim that it costs them two-and-half times more to provide local service than they are now charging is a contention that is certain to undergo careful scrutiny by consumer advocates.

The company made that claim in an announcement last week that they intend to file a request in March requesting a rate increase from the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio. According to Tom Lindemann, company spokesman, it now costs Ohio Bell about $25 a month to provide local service, but the average residential customer pays only about $10 a month, on the average.

The proposed price changes would produce about $123 million in additional annual revenue and

BISHOP ABEL T. MUZOREWA

Ex-African Head Of State Visits Area Congregation

By JANICE D. HAMLET

The arrival of Bishop Abel T. Muzorewa, former prime minister of Zimbabwe, to preach at the North Broadway United Methodist Church, 38 N. Broadway St. Sunday, Nov. 22, was an historic occasion not only for the members of the United Methodist Church but the city of Columbus as well.

Muzorewa came to Columbus as an internationally recognized leader in the struggle for African independence. He was named lifetime bishop of the United Methodist Church of Rhodesia last year. The first African to lead this church, he was elected in 1980.

During the morning worship service, Bishop Muzorewa told of his personal pilgrimage and of the struggle of freedom for the people of Zimbabwe.

Muzorewa said that not only did he have to contend with stubborn colonial rule headed by prime minister Ian Smith, but with powerful divisions among native Zimbabweans.

The bishop said that he was perceived as too radical by the entrenched whites and too tame by the fellow contenders for power. But under his leadership blacks championed for majority rule in Rhodesia.

The fact that Zimbabwe today is ruled by a black majority is due to the leadership of Muzorewa who served for a brief time as prime minister of a coalition government.

In December, 1972, Bishop Muzorewa received the UN Human Rights Award. He was also nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize. He has been cited as one of the world's 11 most influential Christian thinkers by editors of six religious journals.

Today Muzorewa devotes his time fully to his responsibilities as bishop of the United Methodist Church in his native land.

A press conference following the morning worship service, Muzorewa said, economically his country has a long way to go.

"African people are basically spiritual people. The church is the only organization available that tries to uplift the situation," he said.

Muzorewa also said that although Zimbabwe is predominately black and free, people can be too free to be any good.

"People abuse freedom," he said. "They kill others, they kill themselves simply because freedom is something they have never experienced before. They don't know how to use it effectively," he continued.

Muzorewa said that the role of the United Methodist Church in the new nation of Zimbabwe is to give witness and to evangelize the people.

CALL Serves As Central Point For Holiday Aid

For many people in Franklin County, food baskets and toys donated by area residents will make the difference between an austere Christmas and no celebration at all.

CALL, the Community Information Referral Service, will again this year operate the Christmas Clearinghouse, which serves as a central intake point for requests for Christmas aid from the numerous church, government and civic groups offering assistance to the poor and the elderly.

CALL began taking calls from those needing food or toys on November 30.

Now in its eighth year, the Clearinghouse provides those seeking help with a single phone number to locate the helping organization nearest them. In addition, it helps make sure that as many families as possible will be helped by keeping a record of those served to reduce duplication.

Persons wishing to donate food, money, or toys or those seeking Christmas assistance, can locate the nearest participating charity by contacting CALL at 221-2255 (221-CALL).

DEMOLITION FOR PROGRESS - Byers early 1900s livery stable, once located on 20th Street near Mt. Vernon Avenue, and other structures are being demolished to make way for a 31,000-square-foot supermarket to be owned and leased by the Neighborhood Development Corporation. The supermarket is slated for completion late next year.

BYERS' 1905 BRICK - Charles Wallace, second from right, president of the Neighborhood Development Corporation's Board of Trustees, presents a brick from Byers' early 1900s livery stable building to Frank Byers, second from left. Demolition of the building located on North 20th Street and other structures is now underway to make way for Mt. Vernon South Supermarket. The building was also Byers' first car dealership. Byers Makes Final Journey To Original Business Site recently to take a final look at the building his family constructed in 1905. He was invited by the president of the Neighborhood Development Corporation's Board of Trustees, Charles Wallace, to receive a brick from the 77-year-old structure as a memento. The building is part of a two-and-a-half acre site now being cleared by NDC to construct a 31,000-square-foot supermarket.

The Byers family operated a livery stable on 20th Street from 1905 to 1916 where they rented horsedrawn buggies and hearses. from 1916 to 1918, they sold horses and cars with such long, lost names as Rickenbacker, Auburn Westcott and Dort. Dixie Flyers and Hudsons. Esseses and DeSotos were the fare in subsequent years. In 1945 the Byers organization moved their operations to East Town Street, and, in 1980 the Chrysler-Plymouth auto dealer moved to its present location at Cleveland Avenue and East Broad Street.

"I used to eat lunch in Tyler's Durg Store," Byers told The Call & Post nostalgically. He was referring to the store that the father of the present owner of Waldo Tyler's Pharmacy Services in the Mt. Vernon Plaza operated at the southeast corner of Mt. Vernon and 20th for over 40 years. Byers, in his conversation at the presentation with Wallace, Emma Rudolph, NDC Commercial Manager, and Charlotte Wright, NDC Quality Control Supervisor, described the stores and other businesses that used to be located on the avenue and in the area.

The Neighborhood Development Corporation is the sponsor-manager of Mt. Vernon Plaza. NDC will own, construct, and lease the 31,000-square-foot supermarket that will have 300 parking spaces. The abandoned fire house, that once housed The Columbus Area Development And Training School (CADATS), will be restored for use as a commercial building. Byers praised the redevelopment of the area which his family once called home.

William Potter, Chief Operating Officer of NDC told The Call & Post, "We have demolished seven of the fifteen structures thus far...so, we are halfway there." Potter estimates that the new structure will be completed by the end of 1982. In response to a question about who would be the lessee and operator of the supermarket, Potter said, "Lease negotiation is fragile at best. I really have no right to reveal who we are negotiating with until agreements are solid. I would be Potter added that the two-and-one-half betraying a business trust."

KHARI ENAHARO

...to serve on discipline task force.

Task Force Named To Study School Discipline Problems

Several prominent blacks are among 18 persons selected to serve on a task force to study the problems of discipline in the public schools. Announcement of the forming of the task force was made last week by the president of the board of trustees of the Center for Public Education, the sponsoring agency.

The board president,

Gerald E. Mayo, made the announcement in a news release last Wednesday. The purpose of the task force, as described in the release, "is to enlist broad-based community input into the analysis of (discipline) problems confronting the public schools. The task force will analyze all components of the discipline problem and develop a model policy which will then be available for pilot testing by public school districts in the greater Columbus area."

Among the members of the task force are past and present members of the Columbus school board and the Ohio Board of Education, professional educators including active Columbus school teachers and principals-the clergy, the juvenile court system, the news media and other elements of the community.

Mayo is quoted in the release as saying that public school officials have not allowed sufficient community involvement in their efforts to solve growing discipline problems.

"This task force is designed to demonstrate that discipline in the schools is a community problem-not just a school problem, and will hopefully arrive at a policy to deal with discipline that has the support and understanding of the entire community," Mayo said.

Members of the task force named in the release are: Khari Enaharo, representing community organizations; Dee Azbell, representing public school teachers; Robert Block, public school support personnel; Brian Bracco, news media; the Rev. John Cairns, the religious community; Monte Crockett, the juvenile court system; Jewelyn Dicello, Columbus Public Schools; Lee Hall, guidance counselors; James Hildebrand, realtors; Gary Holland, school boards; Karole Johnson, parents; Dr. Edwin K. Michal, parents; Richard Moss, youth agencies; John Mulherin, high school principals; Ruth Schildhouse, Ohio Board of Education; Diane Warner, building level school administrators; and Dr. William Wayon, representing teacher training institutions.

A representative of suburban school district superintendents will be chosen soon, the news release stated. The first meeting of the task force is scheduled for Thursday, Dec. 17, at 8 a.m. at the Christopher Inn.

In a telephone interview Monday, Dr. Peter F. Demers, executive director of the Center for Public Education, told The CALL & POST that the recently established agency is unique in Columbus history and may be "the only agency of its kind in the country."

Demers said the center's purpose is to improve the quality of public education in Central Ohio and to promote a better public image of public education.

The director said the idea of establishing such an agency was conceived about 18 months ago by a group of people who were interested in public education and unhappy about what they perceived as the school system's need to form stronger working ties with other elements of the community.

When asked if the center is, in effect, a "think tank," Demers, who became the agency's first executive director in August, said he would prefer to call it a "think-plus-action tank" that not only generates ideas but is involved in planning, demonstrating and applying those ideas in partnership with school officials.

The Center for Public Education is principally funded through grants from the Columbus Foundation and the Yassenoff Foundation, both of Columbus, and the Bingham Foundation, of Cleveland, as well as occasional grants from other philanthropic sources, Demers said.

In addition to Mayo, who is president, officers of the board of trustees are Gloria Davis, vice president; Dr. Terry P. Roark, treasurer; and Clifford Tyree, secretary.

Other board members are: Rowland C.W. Brown, Dr. Robert Burnham, Dr. Luverne Cunningham, Mark Feinknopf, John Grossman, Dr. David Hamlar, Loretta Heard, Frank Lomax III, Dr. Evelyn Luckey, Ruth Schildhouse, Ralph Smithers, Richard Trelease and Dr. Franklin B. Walter.

Psst. Save some energy tonight.

Like all Americans, you're for saving energy. Chances are, you may have already added insulation to your home. Caulked windows. Weather-stripped your doors.

Still more can be done. Little things that don't cost you a cent. Things that change old habits which waste energy.

Evening Energy Savers

Starting tonight, lower your thermostat as low as comfort permits. Each degree over 68° can add 3% to the energy used for heating.

If you're entertaining, lower the thermostat a degree or two before your guests arrive. People generate heat.

Close off unused rooms. Turn off lights as well. When removing food from the refrigerator, plan your total needs and open the door no more than necessary. Repeated openings waste energy.

When the sun sets, close the draperies to hold in heat.

When the fireplace is not in use, close the damper tight. An open damper allows warm air to be pulled out of a room.

Set your water heater's temperature at a moderate 140°F or as low as possible to allow for enough hot water.

Use fluorescent lamps wherever possible. They produce four times the light per watt as do incandescent bulbs.

Turn off all unneeded inside and outside lights before going to bed.

One final tip.

For dozens of additional energy-saving ideas, visit or call our office and ask for our free "SAVE" booklets. They'll get you in the habit of saving energy morning, noon and night.

Save America's Valuable Energy

We give it our best.

Jobs For The Jobless

Jobs. Where are they and how do you get them? If the work of a recently formed commission is successful, more present joblessness may be known as the former jobless. The Employment & Educational Commission of Franklin was created last May by Columbus Mayor Tom Moody to bring together government, businesses, industry and the employment and training community for the sole purpose of working for the unemployed and underemployed.

The commission is less than three months old, so its not being a household word at this point is understandable. But we believe the 17 people serving as board members for the commission are sincere in their work to reduce the disproportionately high jobless rate in the black community.

A study by the Columbus Urban League just over a year ago pointed to the urgent need for a fulltime, coordinated effort to turn around a trend that directly dates back to the recession of the mid-1970. The League cautioned that unless something was done, the city could find itself in the undersirous position of spending more to provide for the protection from the jobless than the cost of helping to place them in work.

The work ahead for the commission will be difficult, but is necessary and as essential to the growth and continued well-being of this city as any other project that public and private sectors can undertake.

People who desire to work should be allowed to do so, and they should receive a decent and equitable wage for their labor. The commission has the task of bringing this about by linking jobs and the jobless. It's an urgent task that must succeed if we are to become an open society that meets human needs.

Opportunity To Support Academics And Athletes

For some, associating collegiate sports with academics is on the ridiculous side when it's considered the grade point averages of the athletes or their majors seem to get when the cameras focus on their exploits in the sports arenas.

This is not only a disservice to the public, which comes to view athletes as less than serious academic students, but even more so to the athlete, who in more cases than not is a serious academic student.

Well, because of an annual project the Merry Makers Club, something is being done about this distasteful image. As a recognition of the sameness of sports and academics, the club sponsors a banquet that honors basketball players at Ohio State University and gives proceeds from the banquet to the OSU scholarship fund to benefit academically inclined students who don't have the athletic skills to receive such a scholarship.

In the first two years the club raised over $17,000 that went to scholarships. Presently seven students are attending OSU on the scholarships.

For those who deplore the deemphasis on academics when it comes to college sports, this is an opportunity to say so by supporting the banquet to be held Thursday, Dec. 10.

In addition to saying thank you to the athletes in their endeavors to develop themselves academically through athletic scholarships, the support also says the effort to provide scholarships to students without athletic skills is a part of the educational process also.

Deals With Africa Long Overdue

The signing last week of a $50 million building project by Garland Enterprises of Columbus and the Anambra State of Nigeria represents real opportunities for economic development and growth for minorities. The project calls for the construction of a massive new steel mill. That is the initial project of a contract totaling $250 million, which involves construction and rebuilding of other major industrial facilities in the African state.

What is more significant than the signing of such a contract in 1981 — for it's been long overdue — is that Garland Enterprises stands prepared to make the project a success. While the business exchange between blacks in this country and Africa has increased significantly over the past two decades, there remains a lot of lost opportunities.

Africa is on the move and fast becoming one of the major centers of industrial growth despite the overwhelming poverty that grips part of the continent. But too often many of the contracts that have involved construction in African countries have involved white-owned companies doing the building and making the profits.

This has as much to do with a lack of black companies being prepared to carry out such major undertakings as it does the aggressiveness of white firms going after contracts for projects in Africa.

In Central Ohio, there are other black companies who are expected to share in the exchange of business development with Anambra. With the two parties working together, businesses here can grow and become more competitive in local and world enterprises, and Anambra can become the developed state that it hopes to become. Blacks benefit on both sides. We hope there are more such contracts in the near future.

Not Again...

It seems that the "New Federal" continues to try to force the voucher system" upon us in one form or another. Now it has resurged as a Federal Housing Subsidy, then directly to low income families in the form of vouchers, in an attempt to bypass developers of low-income housing.

As we saw with the proposed educational voucher system, this equally deplorable plan will have an effect opposite to that which it is designed to promote. By forcing low income people into the private housing market, many families will be prevented from escaping the inner city and substandard housing. In addition, the production of new housing units, and the renovation of old ones in the inner cities will not come near the numbers that we are seeing today.

This will occur because funding of construction under the plan would be at the local level through community development block grant (COBG) funds.

We all know who will suffer most if the control of subsidized housing construction is taken from the Federal Government and given to the cities. Though the current system may not operate as well as we would like, the voucher plan is bound to open the doors of our central cities to injustice.

Time on your hands?

We could use those hands.

What Happens To A Dream Deferred?

By Dr. Julian M. Earis, Chief of Office of Environmental Health, NASA Lewis Research Center and Harold Ferguson, Deputy Director of the Regional Equal Employment Opportunity Commission Office

What does the future hold for the special groups of blacks who are being ignored by virtually everyone? How does their future impact what happens to the future of the so-called black middle class? What are the characteristics of the ignored groups? They are, unemployed (many have never had a job), unemployable, uneducated, unskilled or semi-skilled, range in age from 15 to 40 years, male and female, isolated both geographically and psychologically, immobile, and poor.

As a result of being in this group, they have no resources with which to provide minimum needs. Health and nutrition services are unavailable. Their educational institutions are substandard and educational facilities for older members of the group are non-existent. Funds for special programs are no longer readily available. Admittedly, these statements apply to some white groups and groups over 40 years of age also. However, we choose to limit consideration to blacks.

Not only are unskilled jobs not available but positions for the semi-skilled and skilled are shrinking due to advancing technologies and economic factors. There is no identifiable unified movement to address the problems faced by this group... to come to their aid. The result is despair... hopelessness. So what?

Many middle class blacks reflect the attitude of many whites. "Those groups are down there, we're up here. Since we have no contact with them, why should we be concerned?" Let's examine the potential consequences of ignoring these groups for long periods of time.

First of all, the groups are expanding in numbers. The birthrate is higher among low-income groups than others. As large groups of people become more and more dependent, there are increases in drug use and the crime rate which are not restricted to their communities.

Housing patterns dictate that the middle class blacks become the victims of most of these crimes. The occupational patterns of the black middle class put the lie to the statement that they have no contact with these groups. Who do you think are their teachers, social workers, physicians, lawyers, etc.?

Since the days of the riots when white businesses fled and white landlords sold their properties, blacks now operate the businesses and are the landlords. The occupations of the black middle class bring them closer to the problems faced by these groups. White folks have insulated themselves from these problems.

As special programs are eliminated these low income groups can't pay for the medical services legal services, etc. They also don't have money to spend in neighborhood stores which are now black-owned. Even if you aren't touched by these categories, many of you must travel through these neighborhoods to your jobs and your churches. You may think you don't have to be concerned, but you have no choice but to help solve the problems.

As any group becomes isolated and dependent, it becomes vulnerable to political demagoguery and fanaticism of all sorts. The less education people have, the less likely they are to vote... thereby, eroding the political base in the black community. The vote is one of our most potent weapons.

We have described the groups and stated some potential consequences of ignoring them... now what? Are there any real solutions when given the following realities and constraints?

- Contrary to popular belief, there is not a large amount of money among the black middle class. The black middle class is discriminated against in the wage area and can't help to the degree most people think.
 - A return to industrialization in cities is extremely unlikely in the near future.
 - Institutions normally solve the problems we have discussed... blacks have no real institutions addressing the problems.
 - The total number of jobs available is decreasing.
 - Blacks don't have the political leverage to force the government to act.
 - The traditional groups who sought solutions to these problems are no longer concerned. They have a different set of priorities such as nuclear war, their own jobs, etc.
 - An increasing number of blacks are complacent. They have lived in suburbs all their lives and attended educational institutions in isolation from the problems discussed. They haven't discovered, as yet, that white folks really make no distinction between us.
- Limited space dictates that we end with the following from Langston Hughes: "What happens to a dream deferred... maybe it just sags like a heavy load or does it explode."

Listening With the Other Ear

By LAURA PARKS NNPA COLUMBUS

Europe was laughing itself silly when it heard that "tough cowboy" Reagan had dispatched three former Presidents to attend the Sadat funeral to represent the United States. The laughter grew to belly laughs when it was discovered that the former Presidents were to fly on the same plane. Wits in London and Paris were quick to suggest that perhaps Reagan wished all three men out of the way permanently. The British were gleeful that their future King, the recently married Prince Charles was going to the funeral while the "tough cowboy" remained safely within White House Walls.

Hard pressed Britons still find it difficult to forget Nancy Reagan's expensive gowns worn at the wedding of Prince Charles to Lady Diane. They feel it was a Hollywood type of upstaging of the Princess reminiscent of that town's gaudier days when those without talent were seeking the limelight.

This British reaction towards the Reagans is an indication of the growing opposition to Reagan's policies insofar as they affect Britain and the rest of Europe. Europe feels that high American interest rates are forcing interest rates up in Europe preventing economic recovery.

Further, it is believed that high American interest rates are a deliberate attempt by the United States multi-national corporate establishment to gain supremacy over their European counterparts. It is said that the Reagan Administration cares little if in the United States it drives small business to the wall, the cities to ruin and despair provide the giant multi-nationals achieve victory their international rivals. The weapon being used in this war is the rate of interest, held at ruin causing levels as it fluctuates between 12% to 20%.

Opposition to Reagan policies in Europe is broad and deeply felt. The feeling is particularly strong against United States military plans for the continent. Briefly stated Europe does not wish to become the battlefield caught between the Russians and the Americans. The proposed stationing of sophisticated American weaponry in Europe is regarded as greatly escalating the chances for a nuclear showdown.

Leaders of the rapidly growing European peace crusade recognize that Europe must take a calculated risk and begin unilateral disarmament. This is echoed by the leader of the British Labor Party and surprisingly enough by several retired West German generals. Europe does not wish to die.

In increasing numbers the European peace movement is taking to the streets. In a speech before the West German Parliament, the German Chancellor Schmidt declared that the German peace crusade has in effect declared war against his government. He was particularly infuriated when it was discovered that many leading members of his own party participated in the largest mass rally in post war German history.

Do Blacks Need A New Political Strategy?

By Tony Brown

Blacks have for decades been, and still remain, traditional Democrats in spite of years of unfulfilled promises by unresponsive presidential candidates. The Republican Party, considered to be racist because of its conservative platform, has left a voting Black America at a political dead end.

It has become increasingly clear that Blacks must reassess the nature of their participation in the political process, both in terms of a two-party system and a potential Black independent movement.

Dr. Ronald Walters, professor of political science at Howard University and an advocate of an independent Black political party, said, "The power is gravitating toward the personal organization of the candidates. Now in that situation it seems to me we have a tremendous obligation to make up our minds whether or not we follow the party downhill, or construct a new sense of our own politics."

Joint Center For Political Studies Director Eddie Williams, whose organization monitors and analyzes the Black participation in voting elections, predicts a shift in policy of Black organizations in general: "I think there's going to be some rethinking of Black organizations generally. Some rethinking of Black leadership, political and civic. And I think this is good. Our issues have changed substantially, but we've never made a substantial change in the means by which we were going to try to accomplish our objectives."

Powers in the Reagan administration, reading the need for this shift in Black leadership, fostered a new coalition of Black leaders with new solutions to old problems. An example is Arthur Teale, the newly elected Administrator of the Urban Mass Transportation Administration.

"If there are Blacks or Whites or Browns who want to be a part of this system, that don't want to work and earn their place in this society, I suspect that they will be very uncomfortable and I suspect that they will perhaps call President Reagan a racist," says Mr. Teale in talking about the Administration's policy.

We embarrassed ourselves in 1976 by supporting a man who refused to reward us and followed the losers into the losers' circle in the 1980 presidential sweepstakes. It does not have to be that way in 1984.

Nuclear Folly vs. Tidal Power

By STANLEY TAYLOR

The proponents of nuclear power have stated and restated their "statistic" that there has never been a fatal nuclear accident. That claim should not go unchallenged any longer.

First, nobody really knows how many fatal accidents have occurred in the uranium mining industry, but they are certainly substantial. Reports coming out of Colorado and other states reveal that some uranium miners are now developing cancer perhaps twenty years after exposure to high levels of radiation. Should we agree with "experts" who claim that these are not nuclear accidents?

Do they think the miners deliberately exposed themselves to lethal doses of radiation? The fact is that most of the miners were not aware of how dangerous an occupation they were following until it was too late to reverse the changes that were occurring in their bodies. Most of the miners are Indians who lack forceful counsel.

In the 1950's a terrible nuclear accident occurred in the Soviet Union. No one in the West knows how the accident occurred, but reports have leaked out despite Soviet censorship. Apparently hundreds of Soviet citizens were killed. Many survivors will die of cancer and a substantial geographic area is now uninhabitable.

It will undoubtedly be argued that inasmuch as the Soviets are allegedly contemptuous of human life that a mishap similar to the one which occurred in Siberia could not occur in the United States. I am not so sure. In nuclear tests conducted by the Executive Branch soldiers were required to stand at predetermined distances from ground zero at White Sands, New Mexico. Similar incidents occurred at Bimini and Eniwetok atolls in the Pacific where Navy personnel were involved. Only recently have the courts recognized the rights of those military personnel who developed cancer years later to sue the Government for not apprising them of the risks involved.

No I am not saying that the Executive Branch deliberately exposed military personnel to lethal doses of radiation. What I am saying is that the Executive Branch estimated incorrectly what was a lethal or dangerous dose of radiation and then tried to cover up its error. The risks involved in the Three Mile Island nuclear "incident" have been well publicized. But the truthfulness of officials of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and other officials involved in that incident leaves U.S. citizens uneasy. The covering up of incompetence and lack of exact knowledge goes on apace.

All of this misinformation about nuclear power might be tolerable if there were no other sources of energy available to the United States. The proponents state that we must develop nuclear energy because of the shortage of oil and because burning coal pollutes our air. They argue that the "national security" requires that nuclear energy be developed. I do not agree for the following reasons:

The first large-scale tidal power plant in the world was built by France not far from St. Malo in the Rance River estuary. That dam was built during the Suez crisis when future oil supplies were in doubt. The plant was completed in 1966 and reached full power the following year. It is 88 feet high and impounds trillions of cubic feet of seawater. It is only the pilot project for the much larger Chausey project. It contains twenty-four bulb turbines and its four-bladed seventeen-and-a-half foot propellers can be adjusted to different pitches to take advantage of variations in the flow of water. The bulbs can generate electricity on either the ebb or flood tides. The plan produces more than 580 billion watt hours of energy a year. Although the Rance plant costs slightly in excess of more conventional hydro-electric plants, it is a brilliant success.

The Soviet Union completed a small 400-kilowatt tidal plant at Kislaya Guba in 1968 and the Koreans and the Chinese are actively working on tidal projects.

If the Canadian Government is unwilling to let the United States proceed with its plans for damming Passamaquoddy Bay to build a tidal plant, there is another feasible project planned wholly within U.S. waters at Cobscook Bay near Eastport, Maine.

Feasibility studies have also been made at Cook Inlet in Alaska where the tides are even greater than at Eastport Maine.

In conclusion, there is no dearth of dam sites in the United States; there is only government lethargy to contend with. I do not believe that the oil companies are powerful enough to block the development of tidal energy if it is really necessary for our security. Tidal power is cheaper than oil, cleaner than coal, and safer than nuclear. It is here; it is clean, safe and efficient. So what are we waiting for?

Solidarity For Our Children

Dear Editor:

I have been a black American enough years to understand the necessity of black solidarity and the terrible consequences of fragmentation. In principle, then, I support and applaud any and all actions that result in such togetherness.

I watched and listened with interest as the black leadership protested an attempt to replace a black council president with a black councilman. The ostensible reason for this protest was that the councilman was a token selected by the white members of Council. I was reminded of a similar coming together of the black leadership a few years ago when George Forbes faced charges in the carnival kickback case.

As I watched and listened and remembered I was struck with the irony of it all. This great outpouring of support for poor George Forbes, powerful black leader, well educated, suave - in many ways a role model for black youths. And I thought of his constituents, especially the 80,000, mostly black children who attend the Cleveland public schools and thought what a great thing it would be if that same black leadership which in a matter of hours was able to thwart the attempt to change Council presidency, would use that enormous energy, talent and influence on behalf of Cleveland's children.

With the notable exceptions of Congressman Louis Stokes, Councilpersons Fannie Lewis, Tyrone Bolden and Andrew Wright, few of the black leaders of Cleveland have recognized or joined efforts to improve Cleveland's educational system to the point where it will prepare young people to support themselves and participate in the society as contributors rather than recipients.

And my question is where have the black leaders been in the many other crucial problems facing Cleveland's black population? Why is this vaunted and necessary solidarity so selective? Since the results of such solidarity prove it to be a valuable and effective tool, why is it not used to help educate children, provide decent housing, eliminate the indescribable human suffering? The black leadership has fought for a city income tax, it has fought for George Forbes. Is it not time to fight for the children of Cleveland? Will black parents in Cleveland continue to accept such treatment from their leaders. Is George Forbes more important than their children, the future of this city? All black Clevelanders must ask themselves this question.

Failure of the black leadership to demand quality, integrated education makes all the pious mouthing about the need for black solidarity simply "full of sound and fury, signifying nothing." Instead of a continuation of past practices, let's see some strong, united black leadership follow the lead of Louis Stokes and company and take the steps necessary to see that children are educated in Cleveland.

Sincerely,
Martha L. Smith

Education Solutions
Suggested By Reader

Dear Editor:

The subject I wish to present is "Black Johnny's Homework." We all know there are far too many dropouts. But the more sad thing is the thousands of black students who are attending school who aren't producing anything.

I have worked in the school system and I remember a counselor asking me what I thought the solution to the problem was. I told him I thought a tripod of responsibility was required where the student, parent and teacher were to be accountable to each other for the production of "Black Johnny's Homework," etc.

I strongly feel that we cannot put the blame on Johnny when his home life has failed him and the teachers have not followed through in the production of his homework.

When I say follow through I mean, when it is known that Johnny is not doing his homework and the parents (justifiably or not) don't come to parent-teacher conferences, that teachers should have the dedication instilled in them to make home visits.

Also, I think the NAACP and other influential black organizations should ask the black colleges to orient the teachers being trained at their institutions to make home visits. They could start doing this during student-teacher training before they graduate. Then maybe this condition of feeling that I am too good, or am not being paid enough to make home visits, will be offset.

I am more than certain that this type of action would definitely help alleviate the problem of where is Black Johnny's homework and why.

Thank You,
Thaddeus R. Troy

Niger Gets $13.6 Mil
Grant For Project

A.I.D. Administrator Peter McPherson.

The grant is part of a $21.3 million joint U.S.-Niger five year effort. The project is designed to firmly establish an extension system which will permit 6,000 farmers to receive the agricultural inputs and training needed for the adoption of improved cultivation practices. Adoption of the improved practices will greatly increase the crop yields. Other beneficiaries will be the 8,000 villagers who will participate in the training programs for literacy, cooperatives, blacksmithing, on-farm cattle fattening, and forestry. Also nearly 80,000 other farm families (420,000 people) living in the project area will benefit indirectly from the spread-effect of the innovations introduced. All beneficiaries are members of Niger's vast rural poor majority who have an average per capita cash income of less than $100 per year.

Environment damage caused by drought and growing population pressures continues to plague West Africa's Sahel region. Niger, which has a population of 5.6 million and is twice the size of Texas, is one of eight Sahelian countries that suffers from cyclical drought and consequent food shortage problems. The other countries are: Cape Verde, Chad, The Gambia, Mali, Mauritania, Senegal, and Upper Volta. A.I.D. is supporting projects designed to alleviate these problems in all of these countries.

The Agency for International Development is providing the Republic of Niger with $13.6 million, to help it achieve food self-sufficiency and improve the standards of living for its rural poor in the Niamey region.

Over 75% of this amount will be disbursed in the U.S. for the procurement of U.S. technical services, vehicles, fertilizer and miscellaneous supplies," said

JOHN W. ROGERS

Rogers, as a lead, had an interest in investments fostered by his parents, Judge John W. Rogers Sr., a county juvenile judge in Chicago, and Mrs. Jewel Rogers Lafontant, a nationally known attorney who served as deputy solicitor general of the United States from February, 1973 to June, 1975.

Now somewhat older and having gone through training at William Blair & Co., he is an even stronger believer in the market but counsels care and conservation.

Backed by the LaBelle Street firm's research department, he is always looking for emerging investment opportunities.

In college, he was an outstanding athlete and, his senior year, was captain of the Princeton basketball team. In 1979, he won the school's Backboard Basketball Award, and in 1980, the B.F. Bunn Trophy awarded annually to that member of the Princeton University basketball team who, in play, sportsmanship and influence, has contributed most to the sport.

The ice cream cone was created by Charles Menches July 23, 1904, in St. Louis, Mo.

Number Of Black Elected Officials Up 2.6 Percent

The number of black elected officials in the United States increased by 2.6 percent between July 1980 and July 1981, according to the Joint Center's annual survey of black elected officials (BEOs). Last year's increase was 6.6 percent.

The 1981 increases were concentrated in a few states. This year, as last, Mississippi had the largest net increase in number of black elected officials, 52. Georgia gained 43 BEOs; Illinois and Kentucky each gained 17; Ohio gained 13; and Tennessee, 11. Texas had a net loss of 33 BEOs. Other than these substantial changes, net losses and gains around the country were generally small.

The number of black officials has increased every year since the Roster was first published in 1970.

In 1980, three years after passage of the Voting Rights Act, there were 1,160 BEOs in the country; as of July 1981, there were 5,038. (Results of this fall's elections are not counted in this total). Blacks now hold 1.03 percent of all elective offices in the United States.

On the whole, blacks must still depend on support from black voters to win elective office, and the geographic distribution of BEOs still corresponds to the distribution of the black population. Thus, the Southern states, which contain 53 percent of the black population of the United States, also contain 61 percent of all black elected officials.

At present 340 blacks hold state-level offices; 38 hold regional offices; 465 hold county offices; and 542 hold judicial and law-enforcement offices. By far the largest category of BEOs remains municipal officials: this year there are 2,382, up slightly from last year's total of 2,346. The second largest category of BEOs is education officials. The 1,255 black education officials represent 25 percent of all BEOs.

As they have for the past decade, black women continued to gain offices at a greater rate—3.4 percent—than black men—2.4 percent. Black women make up about 20 percent of all black elected officials. They are distributed widely both geographically and by level of office. They are especially concentrated in educational offices and hold relatively few judicial and law enforcement offices.

Probably the most noteworthy fact about the number and distribution of black elected officials is their stability. Since 1976, the rate of growth has been relatively low, and the distribution geographically and by level of office has changed little. Milton Morris, director of research at the Joint Center, said of this year's findings, "While the continued growth in the number of black elected officials is encouraging, its pace can only be cause for concern in view of the massive disparities between the proportion of offices held by blacks and the proportion of blacks in the population as a whole."

A complete listing of black elected officials throughout the country and a set of statistical tables will be available in the 1981 Roster of Black Elected Officials, the eleventh annual edition, which will be published in December. Copies may be ordered from JCPS for $23.00.

Many of the estimated 60,000 Haitian refugees who recently arrived in the United States in rickety boats suffer from acute depression and psychosomatic disorders created by the fear of living in a "climate of insecurity."

This is the assessment of Dr. Toussaint Celestin, a professor of psychiatry at the Howard University College of Medicine, who says these refugees are very depressed, angry and frustrated over their uncertain fate in this country.

Based on interviews with Haitian refugees in Jacksonville, Orlando, and Miami's Little Haiti, Dr. Celestin notes that he found that many of the refugees are under tremendous stress and anxiety. Their chief fear is the threat of deportation.

The refugees Dr. Celestin interviewed were granted special temporary status to work in this country. The psychiatrist emphasizes that the psychiatric conditions of the majority of refugees confined to U.S. detention camps are probably worse.

Dr. Celestin, a native of Haiti, recently organized a seminar at Howard University to evaluate the health status of Haitian and Cuban refugees through discussions among health professionals. A featured speaker was Haiti's envoy to the United States, Ambassador George N. Leger, who claimed that many of the Haitian refugees were "victimized" by organized smugglers who transported them part of the distance in ships "like running contraband."

Ambassador Leger indicated that the Haitian refugees were led to believe that they would find jobs in the United States, which was described to them as Garden of Eden and paradise. Instead, they were greeted by U.S. immigration authorities who placed many of them in detention centers.

The increase in the number of Haitian refugees to the United States has created an "emergency situation" in the cultural and psychological problems confronting the refugees, says Dr. Celestin. This situation, he adds, requires the immediate attention of doctors and other health professionals.

Dr. Celestin points out that he has found that depressive neurosis is one of the basic problems. As a result of this neurosis, the psychiatrist says that many of the refugees are not eating and sleeping. The refugees are also suffering from stomach pains and asthmatic conditions due to psychosomatic disorders, he notes.

These health problems are probably more serious in the refugee detention camps because of the stress inflicted by confinement, Dr. Celestin contends. He points out that one of the main camps, the Krome detention center near Miami, poses a health hazard. The Haitian refugees there are reportedly exposed to snakes in their quarters as well as overcrowded conditions.

Dr. Celestin says he hopes to gain access to the detention centers to assess the refugees' health problems. Meanwhile, he plans

Awards Given For Effort To Achieve Fair Housing

William C. Habig, director of the Mid-Ohio Regional Planning Commission, received the Northwest Area Council's 1981 award for Community Service "particularly for his personal leadership on behalf of Equal Opportunity Housing in Franklin County" from Council President Bruce Bowles, during the Council's Annual Meeting recently at Covenant Presbyterian Church.

David A. Larson received the award for Membership Service, presented by Paul Vancouver, "for past services as Treasurer and President of the Council and for arrangement of its two 'Quality of Life' conferences." Vancouver also commended both award recipients for their roles in effecting the landmark "Franklin County Fair Housing Research Study" in 1979.

Warren Ellis, a vice president of the Council, reported that it had sent

"Notes of Appreciation" so far this year to 55 central Ohio organizations "for public actions lending support to the practice of Equal Opportunity Housing in the Northwest Area." The recipients included local governments, financial companies, housing firms, and other business entities.

Ellis also proposed 12 additional recipients. He described this Council activity as broadly intended to assist the voluntary affirmative marketing program of the Columbus Board of Realtors.

"To help these organizations realize that many others share their favorable view of Equal Opportunity Housing may be the most significant thing the Northwest Area Council can do today," Ellis said. He also stated "all Northwest Area residents and groups are welcome to participate in the Council's activities. The only qualification is desire for equality of opportunity and justice for all Americans."

Guest speaker was Kermit Lind, director of The Cuyahoga Plan, a private agency that deals with Equal Opportunity Housing and related matters in the Cleveland metropolitan area. According to Lind, it is one of the largest organizations of its kind in the United States, and is unique in being governed by "a coalition of interest."

Its Board of Trustees includes representatives from the local real estate and financial industries as well as from area municipalities and Equal Opportunity Housing-advocacy groups.

He placed its current budget at about $400,000 per year, mostly from service contracts—many with local municipalities.

Making Merry In Michigan Was A Cinch For Buckeye Boosters

The OSU Football Team and their coach Earle Bruce got a big boost when two bus loads of Merry Makers and their friends invaded Michigan territory. The dyed-in-the-wool scarlet and grey fans took along enough enthusiasm for themselves and all those who stayed behind in Columbus and watched the classic rivalry on the tube.

No matter what you are doing, there's nothing like getting off to a good start and that's exactly what happened with the Merry Makers and their crowd. The club house was the point of departure that cold, overcast afternoon, but it didn't dampen the spirits of the football buffs one bit. The clubhouse was the happiest place in town and you couldn't find a soul that wasn't looking forward to the trip, win or lose. It was a spiffy looking crowd. Some of the folks decided to go western and many of them looked as if they were headed for a swanky dude ranch instead of a football weekend. There were designer hats, jeans, boots, belts and jackets galore and OSU colors, scarlet and grey, were very much evident.

Each of the two buses had a Guru. Amiable Bill Harris and Bobby Cromwell filled this roll with so much skill, that it wouldn't come as a surprise if Amer-cold beer compliments of the Merry Makers and other goodies brought along by the riders. Everyone was most generous with all of the delicacies and it wasn't at all difficult to blow one's calorie intake for umpteen weeks. Enroute, things never got dull, because every now and then somediately became Buckeye country, and even before game time, the next day Scarlet and Grey reigned supreme. The few maize and blue fans about didn't make it obvious.

Friday night everyone was on their own and of course there were parties in suites until the wee miss the most exciting moments either. Besides the Buckeyes were awaiting our support and there wasn't a Michigan fan in our area who didn't know when it arrived. The game was a sort of once in a lifetime thrill, even for those of us who know too much about football, and it was the living end for those who did.

Back in Detroit that evening, the Merry Makers hosted an elegant banquet in the Versailles Room of Hotel Pontchartrain. Lucien and Julius' party giving know how was obvious and the menu was superb. The food was good and beautifully presented. The scrumptious buffet menu was Cucumber, Onion, Beet Salad, Macaroni Salad; Watermelon filled with fresh fruit; Assorted Relishes-Domestic cheeses-Fruit Jello Molds-Chef Salad-chef carved Roast Prime Ribs of Beef, au jus-Chicken Supreme-Seafood Newburg-Rice Pilaf-Mario Potatoes-Broccoli au Gratin-French Breads-Pontchartrain Cheese Cake-Assorted Tarts and Pastries.

The Merry Makers didn't spoil the evening by having a formal program. The agenda, which was marked by brevity, included a warm welcome from Dr. Edward J. Sullivan, president and a few complimentary remarks from Malcolm W. Scipio, a charter member who now resides in Chicago.

The Merry Makers Football weekend was a delight. Getting Around in Winter will be explained Friday, Dec. 11 from 7:30-9 p.m. when Ranger Barb Stewart shows you the snow travel of yesteryear and today at Canal Visitor Center, 6699 Canal Rd.

ican Express or some other big touring company were to recruit them. Every time you set foot on the bus, these two gents had your welfare at heart, and they made you feel happy that you came along.

The partying began as soon as the bus hit the highway. About zero miles out of Columbus it was evident that Julius Williams and Lucien Wright had planned things to a tee. Out came sandwiches, soft drinks and plenty of cold, one, especially Bill, who was our Guru, and seated in the front of the bus would orchestrate a yell. Folks in the front of the bus would yell, "O H," and the back would yell back at the top of their voices, "I-O." If space would have permitted, the OSU cheerleaders would have had even more competition. It was fun and it made the trip short, at least so it seemed.

When we arrived at the Hotel Pontchartrain in Detroit, Mich. it im-

Season Affects Kind Of Clothes Worn, Especially During Winter

The smell of pine branches... the taste of freshly baked cookies... the sound of church bells...

the sight of a brightly lit Christmas tree... the feel of excitement as Christmas draws near.

The holidays affect all our senses. And the festiveness and sociability of the season affect what we wear as well.

The special care we take in what we wear will be reflected in a variety of holiday fashions for the family. Velvetene blazers and fashion overalls, satin-look camisoles, dotted swiss dresses and blouses interwoven with metallic threads — for women and girls — with ruffles, bows and embroidery providing the decorative trims.

For men and boys, tailored looks are the ticket — wool-blend blazers, V-neck sweaters, dress shirts and ties, velour sweaters and knit shirts with Dragon emblems.

The holiday color spectrum features deep, rich colorations intermingled with pastel shadings that can move right into spring.

Concerned about the long response time and intended to file a complaint with the police department.

A family member, who asked not to be identified, said that calls to police generally do not get quick action in the South Linden area. "It's a problem around here. Something must be done about it."

Funeral services for Steven Brown were incomplete at deadline Tuesday.

Community Appalled By Shotgun Slaying

Slaughter, had been in Columbus only a few days visiting her family when her brother was murdered. She said now she will prolong her visit before returning to Cape Springs (Andrews Air Force Base), Md.

"It's hard to understand, I don't understand," Mrs. Slaughter said. She said her brother often had friends over his house and was well liked. Mrs. Slaughter said she heard that some of Walker's friends might have been pressuring him, she said.

According to Walker's relatives, he had moved into the house on Livingston about three months ago. The graduate of South High School had worked at several jobs and was presently helping his father, Clarence Sr., haul items on his truck.

Crime Solvers Anonymous (462-4700), a non-profit chartered organization, has offered a $1,000 reward for any information leading to an arrest and indictment of a suspect in the Walker killing. Information must be received by Dec. 14 in order to obtain the reward.

Clarence Ernest Walker Jr. is survived by parents, Anita and Clarence Sr.; brothers, Charles and Clarence; sisters and brothers-in-law, Mariela and James Slaughter, Sherry and Al Stovall, Columbus; great-grandmother, Lillie Mae Ross, of Huntington, W. Va.; other aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews relatives and friends.

CMACAO Budget Slashed

to pass a permanent 1982 federal budget and the passage of a temporary budget resulted in decisions that led to the reduction in CMACAO's share of block grant funds. Conley said.

If Congress passes a permanent budget by the Dec. 5 deadline, CMACAO might be funded at a higher level that would allow restoration of some of the positions being cut, Conley said. He did not offer strong hope, however.

"If they (Congress) don't pass a budget by the deadline and pass instead another continuing resolution we might find ourselves cut back even further," the poverty agency official said.

Conley said that agency officials made the decisions regarding which jobs and facilities were to be terminated. "Deciding where to cut was undoubtedly the most painful and difficult task any of us has had to deal with. We know that the action centers are valuable to the communities they serve and that many people will suffer considerable hardships as the result of the closing," Conley said.

"As for the layoffs, terminations, whatever you want to call them, well, it is like having to tell members of your immediate family there is no longer any room in the house for them," he said. "It hurts."

Among those being terminated are staff members who have been with the agency since it was established in the late 1960s as part of the Lyndon Johnson administration's "War on Poverty."

Until this year, CMACAO received its major funding through the U.S. Community Services Administration. Since CSA was abolished by the Reagan Administration, money flows to CMACAO through block grants.

The two services centers being closed are the County Service Center, 3589 Central Ave. in Urbancrest, and the East-side Service Center, 881 Mt. Vernon Ave. All of the 11 employees staffing the two doomed facilities are to lose their jobs.

Twelve fulltime staff workers in CMACAO's central office at 315 E. Long St. and seven parttime janitors have also received their walking papers.

Among the terminated are four veteran administrators who have been with the agency since the early days of its existence. Marion Saunders, director of the East side Center; Ellouise Trout, director of the Urbancrest facility; Richard D. McClure, director of the CMACAO Federal Credit Union; and James Crawford, director of special projects, will be among the layoffs.

Other job categories affected by the cutback include social workers, counselors, and office support staff.

Ma Bell's Plea For More Cash Draws Skeptics

If approved by PUCO, would go into effect in January, 1983, a company news release stated.

Earlier this year, Ohio Bell requested rate increases that would raise local rates by an average of 75 cents in Columbus. That request is still pending. If approved by PUCO, the rate hike would be effective in April of next year.

The company's decision to seek further increases is in response to inflation and "other factors."

"Unfortunately, Ohio Bell no longer can cope with the impact of unrelenting inflation when our prices don't even cover the cost of our basic services," Lindeman said.

Anne Meier, the city's director of Energy and Telecommunications, said Tuesday that Columbus, in cooperation with several other cities and counties served by Ohio Bell, will retain the services of an economist to examine the telephone company's claims of economic hardship.

Meier said the consortium plans to present a unified response to the Ohio Bell request. Three other major cities--Dayton, Akron and Canton--are among the municipalities and counties cooperating in the review.

The central question to be answered, Meier said, is "do they (Ohio Bell) really need these proposed increases to cover their costs?"

A spokeswoman for the Ohio Consumer Counsel's office indicated that her agency will also be studying Ohio Bell's claims of hardship. The spokeswoman said "we'll look very closely" at the company's contention that it costs them more than twice as much to provide local service as they charge for it.

other three cable systems, Warner/Amex, Coaxial Communications and All-American CATV.

He said that in the past, the city has been "reasonable and understanding" about extending deadlines. The company executive said he is at a loss to explain why Meier's office is not "playing hardball" with KBLE.

"Of the four cable companies here, we are the smallest, the only one that is locally-owned, and the only cable system presently operating in the country that is controlled by blacks," Johnson said. "You would think that the city would be anxious to help us succeed--and in the past, they have seemed to--but now they seem determined to force us to do things that could seriously jeopardize our fiscal status."

Ralph Squires, Meier's deputy in charge of cable television regulation, has indicated that the city is putting pressure on KBLE because residents and homeowners in the affected areas are putting pressure on the city.

Both Squires and Meier said they have received "numerous complaints" from people in the unwired neighborhoods who demand to know when they will have access to cable service.

Squires said that complaining residents had been assured by his office that service would be made available according to a timetable originally projected by KBLE said, his office is besieged by calls from irate residents who want to know why the service has not been provided on schedule, as promised.

Johnson explained that the construction completion dates were projections based upon "best guesses" as to when the work could be done. He said that his firm projected in 1979 that they would have their entire franchise area wired by March of this year.

"That was a good faith projection based upon information and circumstances prevailing two years ago," Johnson said. "As it was, we have completed all but these last few miles."

GADDIS & SON, INCORPORATED

On November 6, Gaddis & Son, Inc., a family owned business celebrated ten years in the construction business. This milestone was celebrated at Berwick Party House here in the capital city. The theme for this event was, "To God Be The Glory", because it speaks the sentiments of the family for they know it has only been the goodness of God that has allowed this operation to be successful.

Over 60 guests shared in this special event with the Gaddis family. They were family, friends and employees who through their support and prayers helped to make a dream come true. Also on hand as the speaker was Mr. Alex Shumate, Assistant Attorney General for the State of Ohio where he is Chief of Consumer Fraud and Crimes. In his speech, he commended Mr. and Mrs. Gaddis for their perseverance and determination in establishing and maintaining a successful business for the past ten years. He went on to tell us that this was truly a time of joy and celebration because an alarming number of business ventures fail and the number of minority businesses that succeed are few and far between. At the close of his speech, Mr. Shumate presented Mr. Gaddis with a Business Achievement Award from The Ohio House of Representatives. This award was given in recognition "for your exemplary efforts."

Mr. Gaddis is also the recipient of an MBDM Minority Business Award, 1980. He is listed in the 1981-82 edition of the Blue Book of Franklin County and Gaddis & Son, Inc. is a business member of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Gaddis & Son, Inc. was conceived in March of 1971. After working over twenty years as a construction laborer and foreman, Willie Gaddis decided to embark on a new horizon. It was on March 16, 1971, that Mr. Gaddis, armed with little working capital, one employee, much confidence and faith in God, in addition to the prayers, support and assurance of his wife, that the ground work was laid for what eventually evolved into one of Central Ohio's most stable minority businesses.

As the saying, "behind every man is a good woman," is reflected upon by Mr. Gaddis, "I must truly say that this has been true in the case of my wife, Vivian Thompson Gaddis. I remember that when I first confronted her with my dream of going into business as a cement contractor, she let me know that she would support me in any area that she could, even if it meant working an extra job until the business was established. Her support and the Lord have been the guiding force behind my success." Mr. Gaddis has indeed supported her husband and the business during the past ten years as she has managed the office and handled the bookkeeping of the corporation. She serves as Vice-President and Secretary-Treasurer. Mr. Gaddis as Founder and President of the company also has the support of other family members in the business. His son, Randal has worked with his dad since the age of 14 when he would work during summer vacations. Randal's studies at Ohio State University in the area of Productions Operations Management have greatly assisted him as Second Vice-President of the company. Two of the other Gaddis children also work with their parents. Aletha, a graduate of Bowling Green State University is presently working as an Administrative Assistant and Sylvia, a student at Westerville North and Southeast Career Center works part-time as a Payroll Clerk. It is also hoped that the Gaddis' younger daughter Debra, also a student at Westerville North will someday work in the business. Reginald Carson, nephew, also works in the office as a Radio Dispatcher. The office is located at 746 Mulberry here in Columbus.

Gaddis & Son first began working several small jobs in the Columbus area. The first contract obtained by the company was with Imperial Builders. "God has abundantly blessed us with substantial contracts with the cities of Columbus, Westerville, Bexley, Chillicothe, Worthington, Upper Arlington, Grandview, and Whitehall. The Ohio State University, the Columbus Board of Education, Columbia Gas of Ohio, Todd Tibbals, Virginia Homes and Metzger Brothers. I am especially thankful to God for blessing us to enter into a $1 million plus contract with Dugan & Meyers at Port Columbus International Airport," says Mr. Gaddis.

In ten short years, Gaddis & Son, Inc. has grown from two employees to as many as twenty at one time with 90% of the employees being family related. The company has accumulated a fleet of eight radio dispatched trucks along with several other pieces of equipment. The business has progressed from a sub-contractor to a general contractor specializing in both concrete and asphalt paving plus another company, Syvan Construction Company has been formed which enables Mr. Gaddis to compete with both union and non-union contractors.

Mr. Gaddis would like to thank Representative I. Ray Miller, Jr. of House District 29 for sponsoring the award presented to him by Attorney Shumate at the banquet. The Gaddis family hopes that their success will be a source of encouragement to other minorities striving to begin or maintain a business. Anyone can succeed in business with hard work, determination and the refusal to fail. The Gaddis' are active members at the First Church of God, 115 Wilson Avenue. Their family motto has been, "The family that works, plays and prays together, stays together." This philosophy has kept us going, even when the going was tough," says Mrs. Gaddis.

NEITHER THE UNITED STATES NOR ANY OF ITS DEPARTMENTS, AGENCIES, OR EMPLOYEES IS OR WILL BE A PARTY TO THIS INVITATION FOR BIDS OR ANY RESULTING CONTRACT. THE PROCUREMENT WILL BE SUBJECT TO REGULATIONS CONTAINED IN 40 CFR 35.936, AND 35.939 AND THE EPA POLICY AND GOAL REGARDING THE INCREASED USE OF MINORITY BUSINESS ENTERPRISE (MBE). THE POLICY AS WELL AS THE CITED REGULATIONS ARE CONTAINED IN THE SPECIFICATIONS. THE MBE GOAL FOR THIS CONTRACT IS 10%."

NONSEGREGATED FACILITIES: Bidder and offerors are cautioned as follows: By signing this bid or offer, the bidder or offeror will be deemed to have signed and agreed to the provisions of the "Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities" in this solicitation. The certification provides that the bidder or offeror does not maintain or provide for his employees facilities which are segregated on a basis of race, creed, color or national origin, whether such facilities are segregated by directive or on a de facto basis. The certification also provides that he will not maintain such segregated facilities. Failure of a bidder or offeror to agree to the Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities will render his bid or offer nonresponsive to the terms of solicitations involving awards of contracts exceeding $10,000 which are not exempt from the provisions of the Equal Opportunity Clause.

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY: As part of the procedure for determining the ability of contractors to comply with the Equal Opportunity requirements, prospective bidders and their subcontractors will be required to attend a preconstruction meeting by direction of the U.S.E.P.A. prior to the start of construction at which they will be instructed in the equal employment opportunity regulations and requirements of the agency. No bid will be deemed responsive unless the bidder's certification and other EEO information required by the specifications is submitted with the bid.

All prospective bidders, subcontractors, minority business enterprise and other interested parties are invited to attend the prebid meeting to be held:

DATE: 12/16/81
LOCAL TIME: 10:00 A.M.
PLACE: CITY HALL COUNCIL CHAMBERS

The contract shall be subject to the applicable compliance standards and procedures of 40 CFR, Part 8, Equal Employment Opportunity Under EPA Contracts and EPA Assisted Construction Contracts.

All Contractors, including subcontractors who are party to a contract as defined in Section 3901.01, must hold valid contract compliance certificates. Each responsive bidder shall submit, with its bid, the necessary certifications. Minority business enterprise and female business enterprises bidding on contracts shall also include certification of their qualifications on forms provided for such purpose. Within fifteen (15) days, unless extended by the contracting department, after the opening of the bids, the apparent low bidder shall notify the Contract Compliance Administrator in writing of the subcontractors it will ultimately use to fulfill the contract. If awarded, and shall provide the Administrator with all the necessary certifications of those subcontractors, together with documentation of its efforts expended in attempting to meet the ten percent goal for minority business enterprises and female business enterprises set forth in Section 3907.02. If it has not met that goal and it intends to subcontract work. If the information provided does not demonstrate either that the apparent low bidder will achieve the goal or that it has made a good faith effort to meet the goal, the bid may be rejected. This process may then be adopted for subsequent low bidders. Compliance with the provisions of Article I, Title 39, Columbus City Codes, 1959, is a condition of the contract. Failure to comply with Title 39 may result in cancellation of the contract.

The right is reserved by the Director of Public Service of the City of Columbus, Ohio, to reject any or all bids, and to hold bids for a period of 120 days after the bid opening for evaluating both the Proposal and Contractors. The award of the contract may be made at any time during that period.

Lauch Henry helped find the missing ingredient to educate minority engineers. Money.

Lauch Henry is a teacher. And a scientist. And an engineer. He's genuinely concerned about other people. And he has expressed some of that concern in his participation with the National Fund for Minority Engineering Students.

The fund is a non-profit organization attempting to increase the number of Blacks, Puerto Ricans, Chicanos, Mexican Americans and American Indians enrolled in engineering schools. These under-represented minorities constitute a rich untapped resource to help fill the growing need for engineers. A need that is expected to continue through the mid 1980's.

GM's social law program enabled Dr. Henry to take a year's leave to assist the fund. And IBM continued to pay him his full salary.

The National Fund for Minority Engineering Students is a very worthwhile program. We think so. Lauch Henry thinks so. But most important of all, his of minority engineering students enrolled at colleges and universities all over the country think so. IBM.

The successful bidder also must comply with all the provisions of (a) the Davis-Bacon Act; (b) Contract work hours standard act; (c) the Copeland Act (Anti-Kickback); (d) Title IV of the Civil Rights Act of 1964; and (e) Labor Standards Provisions.

NONSEGREGATED FACILITIES: Bidder and offerors are cautioned as follows: By signing this bid or offer, the bidder or offeror will be deemed to have signed and agreed to the provisions of the "Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities" in this solicitation. The certification provides that the bidder or offeror does not maintain or provide for his employees facilities which are segregated on a basis of race, creed, color or national origin, whether such facilities are segregated by directive or on a de facto basis. The certification also provides that he will not maintain such segregated facilities. Failure of a bidder or offeror to agree to the Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities will render his bid or offer nonresponsive to the terms of solicitations involving awards of contracts exceeding $10,000 which are not exempt from the provisions of the Equal Opportunity Clause.

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY: As part of the procedure for determining the ability of contractors to comply with the Equal Opportunity requirements, prospective bidders and their subcontractors will be required to attend a preconstruction meeting by direction of the U.S.E.P.A. prior to the start of construction at which they will be instructed in the equal employment opportunity regulations and requirements of the agency. No bid will be deemed responsive unless the bidder's certification and other EEO information required by the specifications is submitted with the bid.

All prospective bidders, subcontractors, minority business enterprise and other interested parties are invited to attend the prebid meeting to be held:

DATE: 12/18/81
LOCAL TIME: 10:00 A.M.
PLACE: CITY HALL COUNCIL CHAMBERS

The contract shall be subject to the applicable compliance standards and procedures of 40 CFR, Part 8, Equal Employment Opportunity Under EPA Contracts and EPA Assisted Construction Contracts.

All Contractors, including subcontractors who are party to a contract as defined in Section 3901.01, must hold valid contract compliance certificates. Each responsive bidder shall submit, with its bid, the necessary certifications. Minority business enterprise and female business enterprises bidding on contracts shall also include certification of their qualifications on forms provided for such purpose. Within fifteen (15) days, unless extended by the contracting department, after the opening of the bids, the apparent low bidder shall notify the Contract Compliance Administrator in writing of the subcontractors it will ultimately use to fulfill the contract. If awarded, and shall provide the Administrator with all the necessary certifications of those subcontractors, together with documentation of its efforts expended in attempting to meet the ten percent goal for minority business enterprises and female business enterprises set forth in Section 3907.02. If it has not met that goal and it intends to subcontract work, if the information provided does not demonstrate either that the apparent low bidder will achieve the goal or that it has made a good faith effort to meet the goal, the bid may be rejected. This process may then be adopted for subsequent low bidders. Compliance with the provisions of Article I, Title 39, Columbus City Codes, 1959, is a condition of the contract. Failure to comply with Title 39 may result in cancellation of the contract.

The right is reserved by the Director of Public Service of the City of Columbus, Ohio, to reject any or all bids, and to hold bids for a period of 120 days after the bid opening for evaluating both the Proposal and Contract. The award of the contract may be made at any time during that period.

Musicians' Club Seeks Swinging Quorum Of Members and the first organizational meeting will be Dec. 13 at 2:30 p.m. at the Mt. Vernon Plaza Party House.

Raleigh Randolph, a longtime Columbus businessman and former leader of the Sultans of Swing, announced recently his intention to organize a social club and orchestra for the city's musicians. The new club is to be called the Downbeat Club 589.

When Mr. Randolph was a young musician in the 1930's, the black musicians' union was AFM Local 589. The union had offices and a rehearsal hall in a house off E. Broad St. on Garfield and the union held a liquor license for a nightclub called the Downbeat Club. Bill Stewart and Earl Foley managed the Downbeat Club and Stewart says that a lot of the touring orchestras would come to the club after their engagements in Columbus, creating some memorable jam sessions between local players and national stars.

Children's Play To Be Presented

The Community Arts Project of the Columbus Recreation and Parks Department is sponsoring the children's play, "Hansel and Gretel," at 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 13, at Cook Recreation Center, 3911 Dresden Ave.

The play also will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 15, at Blackburn Recreation Center, 263 Carpenter St.

These performances are a product of the Jewish Center Gallery Players under the direction of Harold Eisenstein. The performances are free and open to the public.

An edict from the national headquarters of the AFM attempted to eliminate segregated locals. In the late 1940s, Local 589 was ordered to consolidate with the city's white local, 103. The assets of Local 589 and the Downbeat Club were sold and split up between the members, who were forced to rejoin Local 103.

Although the newly organized club isn't affiliated with the AFM, Mr. Randolph hopes to personally contact many former 589 members and other local players for membership. Musicians are welcome to bring their instruments to the organizational meeting. The Downbeat Club 589 information numbers are 846-5583 and 253-9558.

Disco Dance Dec. 18 At Union Hall

W.R. Gatling Enterprises Inc., a new firm promoting special events for teenagers, will sponsor a pre-Christmas Disco Extravaganza and Dance Contest at Laborers' Local 423 Union Hall (formerly the John Scales Bldg.), 620 Alum Creek Dr., on Friday, Dec. 18, from 8:00 p.m. to midnight.

According to Jalliah Haqq, co-founder and vice-president, Gatling Enterprises is "a multi-diversified small business corporation" seeking to provide "viable recreational, social and educational activities for the youth."

Haqq, who is associated with her husband, Jamail Umar, in the business, said the firm has plans to expand into several kinds of business activities, including importing and exporting.

The advisory council members were named in a press release as Dominique Galloway, Adrian Sands, Jan Haynesworth, Jewel Toome, Cassandra Coles, Paul Rodney Lo-Buno, Anthony R. Smith and Ida Evans.

Tickets to the pre-Christmas disco affair can be purchased at the following locations: Record Emporium on Livingston Ave.; Dick's Food Market on St. Clair Ave.; Manalise Beauty Shop and Silver Corner Carryout on E. Long St.; Debbie Dear Ice Cream and Plaza Carryout in Mt. Vernon Plaza; and Custer Brothers on Cleveland Ave.

RALEIGH RANDOLPH (left), shown in this historic photo with trumpet great Dizzy Gillespie, is chief organizer for a new social club for local musicians. Veteran instrumentalists and former members of the old AFM Local 589 are being sought to form the nucleus of the new club. For further information, call Randolph at 846-5583 or 253-9558.

THE MASTER-HOOL Hall, dancer and choreographer, will teach master classes Sunday, Dec. 13, at the Betty Robinson School of Dance, 1827 E. Main St. Hall, a specialist in ethnic dance with extensive training in ballet, jazz and modern dance, has toured the U.S., South America, Alaska, the Far East and Africa with several American and Jamaican dance companies. He has studied with the Martha Graham School of Contemporary Dance and the Dance Theatre of Harlem in New York and is in great demand as a master teacher. Master classes for adult intermediate and advanced levels will be held at 2:00 and 4:00 p.m. respectively. The classes are sponsored by Lee Dapours Noir Dance Co. Buckeye Cagers Will Face Road Test Against W. Va.

By FELIX HOOVER

After finishing up final exams this week, the OSU basketballers will take to the road to face their next opponents. The West Virginia Mountaineers are the first squad awaiting the Buckeye cagers.

Ohio State has been victorious in all eight of the previous meetings with West Virginia, including a 70-67 win last year. The Buckeyes will try to extend that streak in Saturday's contest in Morgantown, starting at 8 p.m.

On Tuesday the Bucks will continue their tour when they face the University of South Alabama in Mobile at 9 p.m. The two squads have met only once before, when the Jaguars won 76-67 last year.

OSU's starting lineup is a question mark in light of the mouth injury sustained by star forward Clark Kellogg in the Kent State game last Wednesday. An elbow to the mouth could have cost him two front teeth, but prompt medical attention may have saved them. His playing status is termed "indefinite" by the OSU Sports Information Office.

Kellogg's forced exit from the Kent State game opened the door for forward Tony Campbell to display some of his offensive skills. His 18 points led the Bucks in their 74-54 win over the Flashes. Campbell says he is treating his time on the court as his "9-5" job. He added that he is "playing to win, not just running up and down."

Neither Campbell nor his teammates were merely trotting around the court when they faced Kentucky on Saturday, but they weren't able to hit enough of their shots as they dropped a 78-82 decision to the Wildcats. The Bucks shot under 40% for the game.

The individual battle fans had looked forward to in the off-season failed to materialize as Kellogg and Kentucky center Sam Bowie were both incapacitated.

Those who rose from the bench, however, provided an exciting afternoon, especially up to the 30 minute mark. That's when guard Dirk Minniefield caught fire and helped provide a comfortable cushion for the Wildcats.

Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall said that he had expected the Buckeyes to start with a taller lineup instead of the three-guard set-up. His team had difficulty with the speedy guards in the first half, but packed in their zone the second half to cut off OSU's penetration.

Ohio State Head Coach Eldon Miller said he needed sound ball handling at the outset and decided that would best be provided by his backcourt trio of Ron Stokes, Troy Taylor and Larry Huggins. Miller also said that his young players weren't used to concentrating that long against good players and fell off defensively in the late going.

Despite the defeat, Miller thinks his team "can be pretty strong if we can alternate our guards."

LAND OF GIANTS—Seven-foot-three Troy Hitchcock of Niffin wards off Eastmoy's Eric Lee (6'5") during a recent high school rebound battle. The Warrior's Don Bell looks on. Hitchcock and Lee led their teams in scoring with 14 and 17 points, respectively. But the rebounding of Hitchcock (10), and help from his teammate Eric Corney (scored 14), helped defeat Eastmoy 71-49 in last Tuesday's home game for the Cowpunchers. (RICH CHAMBERS PHOTO)

10TV Previews Ohio State At Liberty Bowl

Post-season gridiron excitement takes on even more enthusiasm for Buckeye fans as WBNS 10TV will preview the O.S.U. journey to Memphis and the clash with Navy in a 30-minute special "The Earle Bruce Pre-Liberty Bowl Special," Tuesday, Dec. 29 at 7:30 p.m.

Then on Thursday, Dec. 31 at 7:30 p.m., WBNS 10TV will present the Earle Bruce Post-Liberty Bowl Special. It will be a half-hour recap of the good and not-so-good developments that happened in OSU's clash with Navy in the bowl classic from Memphis on Dec. 30.

OSU's Head Coach Earle Bruce and 10TV's Sports Director Lee Vislides will analyze game footage, highlight individual player performance and put perspective on key plays that played a decisive factor in the game's outcome.

Columbus Product Leads Wittenberg

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio--Derrick Byers, a Wittenberg University senior from Columbus, is playing a key role in the fortunes of Wittenberg's basketball team this season.

Byers, a 6-6 senior center, grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds in helping the Tigers defeat Earlham College 69-48 in their season opener Nov. 21. The graduate of Marion Franklin High school is expected to be one of Wittenberg's top scorers and rebounders this season.

A fourth-year starter, Byers has been named to the All-Ohio Athletic Conference team as an honorable mention choice each of the last two years. The business administration major was Wittenberg's third-leading scorer and second-leading rebounder last season when he averaged 10.9 points and 6.5 rebounds per game.

Byers is coached by Larry Hunter, who entered this season as the winningest active coach in all of college basketball with a career record of 119-24, an .832 percentage. Hunter guided Wittenberg to the NCAA Division III national championship in 1977 and has led the Tigers to either the OAC regular-season or tournament title in each of his five years as coach.

At Wittenberg, Byers is taking part in one of the top college-division basketball programs in the nation. The Tigers have gone 25 years without a losing season while averaging 20 victories per season during that span.

Byers is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Depriest Byers, 1900 Valcon Ave., Columbus.

DERRICK BYERS

It is very easy for people to persuade themselves that they are being mistreated.

INSIDE POSITION—Clark Kellogg is bucket bound against the Kent State Golden Flashes. Other Buckeyes crashing into the lane include Granville Walters (13) and Tony Campbell (20). Later in the contest Kellogg caught an elbow to the mouth which kept him out of the big showdown with Kentucky. (RICHARD CHAMBERS PHOTO)
